The George Washington University
Department of Computer Science
Tenure Track Openings for Assistant, Associate or Full Professor

The Department of Computer Science at The George Washington University invites applications for two tenure track positions at the Assistant, Associate or Full Professor level, beginning as early as Fall 2020. One position focuses on Machine Learning and related areas; the other position welcomes all areas of theoretical and applied computer science.

New faculty will join a vibrant department with diverse faculty, housed in a new $275M building that encourages interdisciplinary efforts across many fields. The School of Engineering and Applied Science is fundamentally committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and staff and has one of the highest percentages of women engineering students nationally. We welcome nominations of and applications from women, members of underrepresented groups, veterans and individuals with disabilities. We also welcome others who would bring additional aspects of diversity to the university's research, teaching and service missions.

The George Washington University is the largest academic institution in the nation's capital. The exceptional location affords the GW community unique cultural and intellectual opportunities. Close access to many federal funding agencies, research laboratories, and one of the largest concentrations of technology companies in the nation supports high impact research agendas and creates opportunities for two career couples.

Responsibilities
Faculty hired into this position will be expected to build a substantial research program, mentor graduate students in research and teach courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Minimum Qualifications
A Ph.D. in computer science or a related area by date of appointment is required. Applicants must demonstrate potential for developing a quality research program, attracting research funding, and outstanding teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.
